

LISTENER GUIDE

Episode 5: The Holiday Season

In this episode, Heather Summers helps us ring in the holiday season with a medley of classics written by Irving Berlin and Kay Thompson, made popular by Andy Williams in 1963, "Happy Holiday / The Holiday Season."

We hear from two community members about the different ways they've found to give to the causes that matter most to them.

The Community Challenge is all about the gifts we've received and ones we've given, or would like to if we could.

Can You Hear Me? Community Challenge

Song: Happy Holiday / The Holiday Season

The challenge for this episode is to think about gifts you've received in your life, and what you'd like to give if you could...

What would you consider your best "gift" or trait? What are you good at?

---

Where did that "gift" come from? Did you learn it from someone or develop it on your own?

---

If resources were endless, what would you like to give and to whom? Your recipient could be a person or group or community that is special to you...

---

Why have you chosen this person or group to receive your gift?

BONUS CHALLENGE!

Find a piece of paper to make into a card. Fold it in half and make a drawing, painting or collage on the front (examples on page 1). Write a message inside that might brighten someone's day. Put it in an envelope and send it to a care home near you, ATTENTION TO: Anyone Who Needs It. You might decide to make 1, 2 or 10!

Don't forget to share!
